Summary of Significant Accounting Estimates

Accounting estimates are an integral part of the preparation of financial statements and are based upon management's current judgment. The process used by management encompasses their knowledge and experience about past and current events, and certain assumptions about future events. You may wish to monitor throughout the year the process used to determine and record these accounting estimates. The following describes the significant accounting estimates reflected in the Plan's December 31, 2015, financial statements.

Estimate	Accounting Policy	Management's Estimation Process	Basis for Our Conclusions on Reasonableness of Estimates
Fair Values of Financial Instruments	Investments are recorded at fair value.	Common collective trusts are valued at the net asset value of the underlying assets at the end of the plan year.	We tested the propriety of information provided by a third party and found it to be consistent with fair values we obtained from the Plan's third-party source. We concluded that the Plan's estimates are reasonable.
Net Pension Liability	The Plan discloses the net pension liability, as discussed in Note 3 to the financial statements.	The net pension liability calculation is prepared by an independent actuarial company, The Cottonwood Group. The Committee reviews the actuarial results and considers the appropriateness of the assumptions.	We obtained the actuary report, reviewed the assumptions and results for reasonableness, and tested the underlying data. We concluded that the estimates are reasonable.
Pension Plan Assumptions	Actuarial assumptions and estimates are used in the valuation of the Plan.	Assumptions and estimates include the expected rate of investment return on the retirement plan assets, the interest rate used to determine the present value of liabilities, and certain employee-related factors. The employee-related factors include turnover, retirement age and mortality. These factors and the estimated discount rate and rate of return are based upon historical and general market data. The Committee reviews the actuarial results.	We analyzed the Plan's methodology and concluded that the estimates are reasonable.

The methods and significant assumptions used to determine fair values of the financial instruments are as follows: common collective trusts are valued at the net asset value of the underlying assets at the end of the Plan year. Our valuation methodologies have been consistently applied from period to period. The methods and assumptions used result in a measure of fair value appropriate for financial statement measurement and disclosure purposes.

As of and for the year ended December 31, 2015, we believe that the effects of the uncorrected misstatements aggregated by you and summarized below are immaterial, both individually and in the aggregate, to the financial statements taken as a whole. For purposes of this representation, we consider items to be material, regardless of their size, if they involve the misstatement or omission of accounting information that, in light of surrounding circumstances, makes it probable that the judgment of a reasonable person relying on the information would be changed or influenced by the omission or misstatement.

To the Union Employees' Funded Pension Committee and Management
Kansas City Area Transportation Authority Union Employees' Funded Pension Plan
Kansas City, Missouri

In connection with our audit of the financial statements of Kansas City Area Transportation Authority Union Employees' Funded Pension Plan (the Plan) as of and for the year ended December 31, 2015, we identified a deficiency in internal control over financial reporting (control deficiency).

A deficiency in internal control exists when the design or operation of a control does not allow management or employees, in the normal course of performing their assigned functions, to prevent, or detect and correct misstatements on a timely basis. A deficiency in design exists when (a) a control necessary to meet the control objective is missing, or (b) an existing control is not properly designed so that even if the control operates as designed, the control objective would not be met. A deficiency in operation exists when a properly designed control does not operate as designed or when the person performing the control does not possess the necessary authority or qualifications to perform the control effectively.

A material weakness is a deficiency, or a combination of deficiencies, such that there is a reasonable possibility that a material misstatement of the Plan's financial statements will not be prevented, or detected and corrected on a timely basis.

A significant deficiency is a deficiency, or a combination of deficiencies, in internal control that is less severe than a material weakness, yet important enough to merit attention by those charged with governance.

Certain deficiencies in internal control that have been previously communicated to you, in writing, by us or by others within your organization are not repeated herein.

Following is the description of an identified control deficiency that we determined did not constitute a significant deficiency or material weakness:

During our testing performed, we noted that the listing of union employer and employee contributions received from the Plan Sponsor did not agree to the amount reported in the trust statement by $63,000 for the year ended December 31, 2015, due to lack of timely reconciliations of contributions to the trust statements. We recommend that the contributions listing be reconciled to the trust statements on a timely basis.

This communication is intended solely for the information and use of the Plan Administrator, management, Union Employees' Funded Pension Committee, and others within the Plan, and is not intended to be and should not be used by anyone other than these specified parties.
